GIFTS OF THE MAGI

“On entering the house, they saw the child with Mary his mother; and they knelt down and paid him homage. Then, opening their treasure chests, they offered him gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh.” Matthew 2:11

Christmas is a special time of year for us, but for some it can be hard to bear the winter cold. Grace has a long tradition of gathering items for those in need during this season, and so we encourage you to continue with that tradition of giving.

There will be two trees and labeled boxes in the glass entryway where you may place donations during the month of December. You will see a large tree hosted by our Mission-Outreach team with all donations going to Manna House. A smaller tree, hosted by Grace Preschool, will collect gifts going to Share Baby.

These are the items that are being collected:

- Adult Underwear - especially needed for men, all sizes - new
- Adult toiletries - small travel-sized items including shampoo, conditioner, soap, dental products
- Adult warm clothing - warm items such as socks, mittens, hats - new
- Children’s warm clothing - new hats and mittens and gently used or new coats, sizes newborn to 6x

Collection dates for the Preschool tree are December 1-7.

Family Scouting is coming to Grace!

Grace UMC is holding an Interest Meeting on January 16th at 7:00 p.m. for those who desire to create and join a Cub Scout Pack (boys and girls) here at our church. This has been a growing interest at Grace recently and has the full support of our Scouts, BSA (Boy Scouts new name) Troop 612 and Pastor Dane on behalf of Missions-Outreach. Cub Scouts are not a separate organization that just uses our space; they are a ministry and outreach of our church, owned by us. Pastor Dane will be hosting this meeting to share information and begin sign-ups for boys, girls and parents.

If you would like to know more, or are interested in being a leader with our pack, please contact Pastor Dane today! Dane@graceunitedmethodist.org.

Thank you to those who filled Thanksgiving baskets with all of the delicious ingredients for a festive meal for the families identified as needy by the Roland Park Elementary/Middle School. We exceeded our original goal of 12 baskets, actually filling 15, complete with a turkey. And appreciation, too, to those who delivered the baskets to the school.

“Handling grief during the holidays”
Losing a loved one is never easy, and the holidays are often a time when grief surfaces in response to family gatherings, or annual family traditions, or the prospect of facing a holiday alone. Juliet Cain, a social worker and therapist working at the Inspirit Counseling Center, will lead a workshop on caring for oneself amid grief on Wednesday, December 5th at 5:00 p.m.
This is a one-time program open to all. To register, please call the church office - 410-433-6650 or email Rev. Amy McCullough at amy@graceunitedmethodist.org.

It is hard to believe but this is our 25th anniversary of participating in the Angel Tree program at Grace. In 24 years, Grace’s angels have helped bring Christmas joy to over 600 children in the Baltimore area who have a parent in jail. Through the Prison Fellowship ministry, these parents complete a form asking for Christmas presents for their children. For many of these parents, this is one tangible way they can tell their children that they love them even they cannot be with them at Christmas time.

Again this year, we will be receiving the forms for 25-30 children from Angel Tree. We will contact the children’s caregiver to confirm names and ages and see what they might like to receive. We will have the Angel Tree gift sign-up on December 9th at the Christmas Workshop in Fellowship Hall. There you can sign up to buy a toy, article of clothing or book for a child. If you don’t want to shop, you can always make a donation toward a Giant Food gift card that we give to each caregiver.

We ask that you purchase and wrap the gift and bring it back to church no later than Thursday, December 20th. We will deliver the gifts to their homes on Saturday morning and can always use a few volunteers to help deliver.

Thank you so much for your support over the past 24 years!

STRATEGIC PLANNING PROJECT FOR GRACE U.M. CHURCH

The Board of Trustees of Grace United Methodist Church (UMC) have been reviewing various aspects of the use of Grace’s facility and have identified some needs to enhance the facility for its users. Among the short-term needs are the following:

- Enhancing the accessibility and flexibility of the chapel space
- Creating a welcoming area at the main entrance to greet persons entering the building
- Enhancing the safety of all persons using the building
- Creating a handicapped accessible rest room on the upper floor of the Education Building
- Identification of options for creating reconfigurable spaces that could be utilized by multiple groups such as the preschool on weekdays and worship/youth/tenant groups on evenings and weekends.

The Trustees have decided to embark upon a study of the building usage and identify potential renovations that would provide a plan for coordinated, phased renovations to the building to meet the short-term and long-term needs of the congregation and other users of the Grace UMC facility. Interest also exists to update aesthetics of the building interior that may present a new appearance yet maintain harmony with the traditional architecture that makes Grace Church so attractive to the congregation and all of its users.

It must be clearly understood that it is not the objective of this planning process to embark upon a short-term plan to bring about immediate changes to the facility. Instead, the objective of the Trustees is to establish a long-term plan which will identify the overall needs of Grace going into the future. The plan is to have these needs addressed in a unified, consistent manner over a ten year or possibly longer period of time. The plan would identify stages that could be completed over that time without having to redo work completed in a previous stage.

With this in mind, the Trustees have considered proposals from four interested firms to conduct such a study and have selected Waldon Studio Architects, a firm based in Columbia, Maryland, to conduct the study. Waldon Studio has extensive experience in working on similar projects with places of worship and the Trustees have full confidence in their ability to meet the overall objectives of the study. Waldon Studio recognizes the importance of embracing a church’s individuality in the overall plan and expresses the desire to assist in planning for the building and environment to look and feel like the culture of the congregation. With this in mind, the entire congregation will be encouraged and offered the opportunity to provide input to ensure that the overall goals of the project are met. It is anticipated that Waldon Studio will begin its work shortly after the beginning of the coming year. Representatives from Waldon Studio plan to attend a Sunday Service at the beginning of the study and to meet with interested members of the congregation following the service.

Questions will naturally arise as to how this study will be funded, as well as any resulting renovations to Grace’s physical facilities. The study itself is being funded through resources currently available to the Trustees. As for implementing whatever renovations arise from the study, the Trustees will explore worship attendance, congregational annual giving, and congregational enthusiasm for the proposed projects while working closely with church leaders and other financial planning professionals to determine how best to fund any renovations.

The Trustees are excited to be announcing this study to the congregation and look forward to assisting Grace UMC to continue to grow and be a viable center of worship in the future.

A Conversation about the Kirwan Commission

The Social Justice and Advocacy Committee is offering a Sunday morning presentation on the issue of funding for public school education in Maryland, on Sunday, December 2 from 9:15 to 10:00 a.m. In 2016, the Commission on Innovation and Excellence in Education, also known as the Kirwan Commission, brought together representatives from across the state to review past funding for education in Maryland, learn from national experts in education systems, and make recommendations for improving education in Maryland. The Commission issued its findings in December 2017 and the funding of education will be before the Maryland Legislature in 2019.

Elizabeth Reichelt, a member of the strategy team for BUILD (Baltimoreans United in Leadership Development) and a member of Brown Memorial Park Avenue Presbyterian Church, will lead a dialogue with us about the findings of the commission and the advocacy work being planned for the year ahead.

All are welcome to join us for this timely, important conversation.
Stewards of God’s Grace

Words of witness from Stewardship Sundays

When Pastor Amy asked me to speak on how I came to Grace, the phrase coming to grace kept sticking in my mind. I know she meant Grace United Methodist Church, but I remained fixated on the notion of coming to Grace, not as a place, but in the spiritual sense.

In her book, “Grace, Eventually: Thoughts on Faith” Annie Lamott describes grace in a variety of ways. She says, “sometimes grace works like water wings when you feel you are sinking.” “Sometimes grace is a ribbon of mountain air that gets in through the cracks.”

I came to Grace UMC by way of a philosophy class. I began working towards a degree in ethics when my second daughter was a newborn. Studying moral philosophy made me contemplate what values I wanted to instill in my children. What virtues should we promote and pursue?

In my first ten years of life, my day-to-day revolved around a church. We went to church, Sunday school and evening services on Sunday. Youth group was Wednesday night. And I attended the elementary school at the church. Yet, when it mattered, the church and community did not act virtuously towards me and my family. My mother came out and my parents divorced. Instead of offering comfort and support, the church ostracized my family.

I found a new church community in high school, and it was a United Methodist Church. Unlike my prior church experience, which had revolved around teaching rather than action, my UMC experience revolved around service, particularly a service trip during spring break to John’s Island South Carolina, where we worked with the local community to rebuild homes in concert with local UMC groups.

I began considering returning to church with my own children, and I looked for a community where service was key to the church’s identity. I wanted to avoid any church where Christianity was viewed as exclusive rather than inclusive. I wanted to avoid a community where words rang hollow as they weren’t followed by actions. Regardless of arguments about ancient texts, the virtue I take away from the gospels is the responsibility to care for the least of these.

I was drawn to Grace by the actions—the backpack program, water and cereal bars for the homeless, the summer community dinner volunteering, the option to put money in the offering plate marked for those who come to the church’s door… the list goes on. We wanted a church that embodied the scripture: “For I was hungry and you gave me something to eat, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you invited me in,” and we have found that at and by Grace.

Casey Humbyrd

My name is Priscilla Newton, and I am a relatively new member of Grace, having joined earlier this year after feeling drawn to look for a place of worship where I could be more engaged in outreach activities. You see, I have always been a worker bee of sorts. I think my father may unknowingly have fostered a helping spirit in me. He was always lending a hand to co-workers and friends, sometimes to the consternation of my mother. Watching him, I learned you receive a great deal more than you give when you reach out to others.

When people are mistreated, disrespected or dismissed, it means we are not caring for each other. In the last week, people have been murdered in their places of worship and in supermarkets, everyday places where we should feel safe. How we speak to each other matters, and what we do for each other matters.

In my short time at Grace, many of you have reached out to make me feel welcome and a part of your work, for which I am humbled and appreciative. I feel here that people willingly have moved from a place of comfort and privilege to lean in to the unfamiliar and the unknown. As we know well, especially in today’s atmosphere, that is a rare occurrence. It is a wonderful thing when you find shared values and common concerns and build that into an opportunity to work together. Many of you have built relationships with strangers, people who do not look like you nor come from a similar place, and you’ve reached out through dialogue and service and sharing.

It is about relationships, old and new. We are tasked with taking care of people and places that have special meaning for us. And we know from God’s Word that His people mean a lot to Him. Whatever we are able to do -- whether it is serving meals at Manna House or Our Daily Bread (that’s where we used to take the teen Sunday school class to serve at my former church), or delivering food backpacks to local schools so students and their families will have provisions through the weekend, or helping a family new to this country settle in and feel welcomed in their new communities -- as long as what you do comes from your heart and is done in the name of and to the glory of God, it is important. Moreover, it is a form of stewardship.

Now, if you have the means to write a large check, and you pray for guidance and God directs your spirit to take pen in hand, follow the leading of the Holy Spirit! However if, like me, you have more time than money or, like members of the phenomenal music ministry, you have an abundance of talent, by all means use the gifts God has given you. What each of us is able to do is meaningful and it matters. Not many people can do what we might consider great things, but each of us can do many small things with great love.
Clergy Reports [edited] to Charge Conference:

Rev. Amy McCullough, Lead Pastor

2018 was a wonderful year of celebrating 150 years of ministry at Grace Church. The year has been filled with guest preachers, a new history book, a morning of dedicated to service projects, a program centered on social justice, and a Homecoming Sunday. All together the programs have created a rejuvenating time; in which the gifts of the past are helping to propel us to the future. Amid those celebrations, Grace has also reflected on how best to tell our story to the larger world and begun conversations around community, race, and justice in our congregation and the world. During Lent, we read together The Blood of Emmett Till. For four weeks this summer, a small group participated in the "Vital Conversations" presentations offered by the General Commission on Religion and Race. This fall, a new Thursday morning Bible Study met for six weeks, using a curriculum entitled "Knowing God."

As the Lead Pastor, I strive to keep Grace focused on its long-term vision and mission. The Staff Parish Relations Committee has been developing a staffing plan to best resource the needs of the congregation and our charge to make disciples for the transformation of the world. The Trustees have been evaluating the long-term needs of the church and community, with an eye to making any necessary improvements or renovations to the building. A master plan study is slated to begin in early 2019. The Finance Committee has been working toward a more holistic process for promoting stewardship, and is now launching the 2019 stewardship campaign. In June, Grace bid farewell to Rev. James McSavaney, who had served as the Associate Pastor for four years. In July, we welcomed Pastor Dane Wood as the incoming Associate Pastor.

Amid these forward-looking tasks, Grace continued its backpack ministry, held a wonderful Gala/Auction in May, celebrated Reconciling Sunday in May, offered Vacation Bible School, Vacation Theater School and the end of summer Summer Splash party. I serve as the primary preacher, lead the church staff, conduct hospital visits, other pastoral calls, and preside at funerals and weddings.

The 2018 goals arising from Church Conference were: 1) Launch a Social Justice and Advocacy Committee, 2) strengthen communication systems, 3) grow the membership of Grace through a focus on Christian discipleship. The Social Justice and Advocacy committee is meeting regularly, and by year’s end, will have hosted two events. The Communications committee has boosted our visibility on Facebook, helping to promote the 150th Anniversary events and is redesigning our website. As the Lead Pastor, I have sought to encourage deeper reflection on what it means to walk the way of Jesus, and to live our faith beyond the walls of the church. While we continue to seek ways of growing numerically, we have also focused on growing inwardly. All of these discussions lay the foundation for the work ahead in 2019.

Like many congregations, Grace lives amid the continuing conversations about The Way Forward for the United Methodist Church and the approaching General Conference in February 2019. As we strive to be a witness to Christ in a changing world, my hope is that Grace continues to be a welcoming space to all, a place where we hold each other in love, listen well to one another, and together are able to discern God's grace leading us through change and into the future.

Pastor Dane Wood, Associate Pastor of Discipleship and Missions

I would first like to say that I am most gracious to you and to the Bishop for appointing me to Grace UMC. This community has welcomed me and my wife, Megan, with open arms and radical hospitality. Thank you. It is a privilege to work for God’s glory in a community such as this.

My first months here at Grace have been spent getting to know the congregation, the community and neighborhoods around us, and learning the ministries and history of Grace. I am unable to accurately evaluate the goals of the Church for 2018 as I was not here for half of it and still too new to see the whole picture, so I’ll not review this year’s achievements and failings. Instead, I will look ahead. My role is the Pastor of Discipleship and Missions, which focuses my efforts of recruiting, shaping, and empowering disciples to change the world for Jesus Christ. 2019 brings an opportunity to focus how we ENGAGE the unchurched in our neighborhood. We are called to make new disciples for Jesus Christ, and we need to reach new people to do that. I see our outreach getting away from our walls and stepping into the community, your community. Once engaged, we need to CONNECT our guests to Christ, the Church, and you. Connection is building relationships, and relationships bring people to Christ. This is done through Worship and Fellowship. I see us working to provide new worship experiences to complement our already excellent services. Once connected with us as family in Christ, we need to EQUIP disciples for the work. I hope to expand our educational opportunities with classes that are varied in structure and time. I hope to expand our small groups to provide close community relationships with other Christians. Lastly, I see us continuing to SEND disciples out. I believe we can begin an annual mission trip for Youth and Adults that will help us witness to others, as well as expand our Social Justice ministries to engage with the York Road Corridor and all the nearby colleges and universities.

This is a lot of work, perhaps too much for one year, but I don’t do this work alone. This is truly your work. Grace Church has been gifted with much, resources and history that most churches would envy, but you are capable of so much more. God is not done with us, we’ve only begun to scratch the surface of everything God has for us. I’m excited to see what we can do with God’s help in 2019!
